

I am a psep speaker poem lyrics

 I'm not robot
reCAPTCHA

Next

I, Too, Sing America by Langston Hughes

I, Too, Sing America

Genius Annotation

Hughes repeats that crucial "too" again in the last line of the poem. Now the speaker, previously cast aside, not only sings of America but claims it as an identity. Over the course of the poem, the speaker articulates how he has been treated and how he feels about it, and sings of a different future. Through his song, the speaker moves from recognition to hope and in that process is able to stake his claim.

