Your Android is fantastic to do smartphone things on your own screen, but it is also greatly skilled in the control of devices and applications completely separated from sÅ ©, from desktop applications to entire operating systems. Here is a look at our favorites.App/System-Specific Remote RemoteVLC (Beta) There is another apparently popular option with the official-apparent VLC remote tag, but cut certain functionality unless you're paying $ 2.99 For the full version. Peter Baldwin's remote VLC app works well, and it's exactly what you want you to check your reproduction on any machine that VLC (or a compatible control scheme) in Remote. Remote (beta) | BRENNREMOTE APP FOR ITUNES Å $ 4.99, so you really need to want the specific access of iTunes this app provides. But it is very slick, almost total in access it provides, and a great way to make the transition from Hard-to-beat remote app to IOS to Android life. Manage songs and volumes, playlists, iTunes "DJ" during the parts and also works with AirPlay Setups.Remote for iTunes | App Brainroku Remote is a very well done remote control, in front of back, which can control more Roku boxes with all the functionality of the real remote. You can skins the remote control for a nice background, access the Info screen and the 30 seconds quick button and add a widget to the home screen. That last feature allows a truly murdered configuration - creates one of the home screen panels dedicated to the widget and you have a remote control with a simple shot of the remote finger.Roku | APP BRAINBOXE If you like the basics, there is a stripy-down version, but we like improvements that this version has made to the base remote with seven base buttons. Together with navigation, selection, menu, back and typing, there is a better "Now Playback" screen, support for the gesture mode (I.E. Mouse cursor movement similar to a mouse) and a fairly useful settings section. Supware.net box | APP BRAINYOUTUBE The YouTube Android remote control is destined to pleasantly combine with their experience of feeling focused by the big screen, but it is much more than a game / pause tool. You can preview videos in queue or channel on your small screen, so you are always sure to play the right video for other spectators (YEESH, how bad it is when it happens). You can make the row of multiple videos, remove the videos already play and check your subscriptions through your Youtube Login.YouTube Remote | Remote brainxc app The most detailed feature of this remote control? The visual scrolling view of your video library. XBMC is the best to detect and recognize the TV and the movies you have hidden on your storage units, and the remote offers a compact view of everything waiting for your eyes eager, right on your phone. XBMC official remote | APP brainingenerali and uncnified remote control This is only Windows, but if you are using Windows, it could be everything you need. Unified remote packages a lot of remote features in a single launcher, as you can view from screenshot: Windows Media Player, Media General Controls, Activity Switching, File Browsing, Keyboard / Mouse Input, PowerPoint and, Hell, Also Spotify, If you realized that somehow work (or live where it works). Remote remote | APP Braingmote 2.OGMote takes a sort of hybrid approach to remote media control. As a direct remote, it supports technically technically VLC (and Windows Media Player, with a hack) on Windows, Mac and a little on Linux. But GMOte also works as a generic keyboard, a PowerPoint remote control and has standard / jump playback / pause buttons for most apps that accept them from the keyboard buttons. In other It could cover everything that a user needs, or nothing that another user can want, but it is a well ambitious remote control application | BrainRemotedroid App After installing the app on your Android and the server software on your system (Windows, Mac and Linux), you have created a proxy mouse and a keyboard for your multimedia machine from your Android. Nothing more, nothing less - the complete cursor and e Check from a small screen on a much larger screen.Remotedroid | BREENTINGEAMVIEWER APP Be as cheap and open to developers like Android is, there are many VNC-style apps for remote screen access to a system. We like TeamViewer's app, though, though, though, due to its control scheme, which makes the finger-as-tuse flowing a little more intuitive and offers only the right screen display report to controls . The desktop software is also quite tested and making a connection requires only a few numbers punched on the phone, rather than a hunt for the network IP address. The app requires you to have a non-commercialized installation enabled enabled to the application settings.TeamViewer Joe Hindy / Android IR AUTRITA IR Blaster is officially a niche function these days. EA € s becoming more rare as a feature as phones are trying to remove as many ports as possible. However, those with an IR blaster are useful for all kinds of little things. One of these cases is as a remote control for practically nothing with an IR receiver. Which can include televisions, air conditioners, some thermostats, cameras, and other things like that. Today, let's talk about TV remote controls. Here are the best Remote TV applications for Android! Please note, most ecosystems provide its remote applications these days. LG TVs made LG-Remote applications. Samsung does the same as well and so does Google, Apple, Vice, Roku, and many others. Before starting to read, we honestly recommend the remote application by the manufacturer of the thing youÅ € you are looking for control. Otherwise, enjoy your stay! Anymote is one of the best TV remote app. It boasts the support of over 900,000 devices with more added with a certain frequency. It is not just for televisions. Includes support for digital reflex cameras, air conditioners, and virtually any technology that has an IR Blaster. The remote control itself is simple and easy to read. There are also buttons for things like Netflix, Hulu, and even Kodi if the TV supports those things. It is a bit expensive at $ 6.99 and hasna t saw an update from the beginning of 2018 starting from the moment we write. However, it will continue to work with phones with an IR Blaster. Price: Free costs / hardware MoneyGoogle Home is definitely among the best remote apps. Its primary function is to check Google home page devices and Google Chromecast. This means youÅ € ll need one of those to do this job. Otherwise, ita s quite simple. All you have to do is choose a show, movie, song, image, or anything else. It is therefore launches to your screen. And Cana t do things like changing channels. It is also Cana t Change the volume. However, you can change the phone volume and which has the same effect. It's just better over time. The app is free. However, Google Home and Chromecast devices make cost money. The official Roku App is excellent for Roku owners. The application allows you to control practically everything on the Roku. All YouÅ € need your current remote television for volume. The remote control with the Roku App is equipped with fast forwarding, rewinding, play / pause, and navigation. It also has a voice search. It is not what youÅ € d think when it comes to TV remote applications. However, those with a roku donÅ € t really need a full remote app. The application is also free. Joe Hindy / Android AuthoritySure Universal Smart TV is a remote remote television competent with a long name absurdly. Å € s even one of the most Remote TV applications. It works on a whole series of televisions. As Anymote, it also supports other devices with an IR Blaster. It has the advantage of DLNA and Wi-Fi support for the launch of photos and videos. There is also support for Amazon Alexa. We thought it was the thought rather ahead. And it also means that Google Isna T home page the only application here with support for a personal application server. ItÅ € s a raw po' around the edges. However, you can try before buying it. Twinone Universal is remotely one of the best free TV remote applications. It is equipped with a simple design. You should have problems using once you set it up. Should Work for most televisions and set-top boxes. There is even support for some devices that do not fit those categories. Right now, the only negative is advertising. Twinone does not provide a way to get rid of them. We would like to see a paid version in the future to welcome him. Furthermore, this seems to be available only on certain devices. Otherwise, it's a good option. The unified remote control is one of the most unique remote apps. It is useful for controlling the computer. This is advantageous for those who have HTPC set-up (Home Theater PC). There is support for PC, Mac and Linux. It is also supplied with a keyboard and a mouse for better input control. It is also great for Raspberry PI devices, Arduino Yun devices and more. The free version has a while on a dozen remote controls together with most features. The paid version is supplied with everything, including 90 remote controls, NFC support, android wearing support and more. Price: Free / Requires Xbox Onethe Xbox App is a perfectly good app. It allows you to access many parts of Xbox Live. This includes messages, results, news feeds and more. There is also a built-in remote. You can use it to navigate in the interface, open App and more. You will give you quick access to the game / pause, rewind, quick forwarding, back and other buttons that usually last a controller to access. Many people use their Xbox as an all-in-one entertainment package. Those people can use this app to make it a little easier. Joe Hindy / Android Authority Prices: free / up to $ 6.49VATSE is one of the Remote Go-To App for Kodi. It has a load of functionality boat. You can launch media to your streaming devices if necessary. It also has native support for PLEX and EMBY servers. You can access an offline library, check Kodi in its entirety, and also has support for Muzel and DashClock. We are only on the tip of the iceberg when it comes to things that this app can do. However, this is best used on something like a PC Home Theater connected to your TV. You can try it for free. Take each feature if you go pro. The televisions of Joe Hindy / Android Authority have remote apps for their smart TV. These apps usually have all types of functionality. They connect to your smart TV on wifi. This means you don't need an IR blaster to do these jobs. You can change the channel or volume. They will also allow you to select the apps on the TV. Some of the manufacturer's apps are pretty good. Samsung and LG tend to do a job in place with their apps above all. Some are not as big. We could not test each producer. Fortunately, practically all their remote apps are free to download. So you can try them without financial risks. We have the connected Vizio. Just search for the manufacturer in the Google Play Store to find others. The Authority Telephones of Joe Hindy / Android with an IR Blaster are equipped with a remote app. Generally you can find them in the Google Play Store. For example, some devices use me the TV television app integrated by Xiaomi (connected). These are the apps that producers have been tested with their devices. Therefore, it is probable enough to work at least well. Usually you don't get many functionality. However, OEMs include those apps on their devices for a reason. At least they usually do. Sometimes they don't pre-install even the pro version so you don't have to buy it. You may also give these a shot to see if they work since you already have them.
